Dear Mr. Paul:

On behalf of the Professional Certification Board, I wish to extend our congratulations to you on becoming a Certified Protection Professional (CPP). You have successfully passed the CPP examination, which is the final requirement to be designated as Board Certified in Security Management.

Now that you are a CPP, the journey is not over. The professional nature of the CPP designation requires you to continue developing as a security professional. In order to retain your CPP designation you must obtain 16 credits for industry-related activities within the three years after you certify. Industry-related activities include continuing education, participation in professional programs, and service with professional organizations. The recertification process is described in the enclosed material.

I have also enclosed a policy statement on use of the CPP designation as well as the Code of Professional Responsibility to which you subscribed during the application process.

Please accept our congratulations on achieving this milestone in your career. Your CPP designation demonstrates to your employer as well as your peers that you are Board Certified in Security Management. If there is anything the PCB can do for you or if you have ideas that will improve the program, do not hesitate to contact the staff at ASIS.

Sincerely,

CPP CODE OF PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Certified Protection Professionals and applicants for the CPP designation must adhere to the Code of Professional Responsibility, agreeing to:

- Perform professional duties in accordance with the law and the highest moral principles. Non-compliance includes any acts or omissions amounting to unprofessional conduct and deemed prejudicial to the CPP designation.
- Observe the precepts of truthfulness, honesty and integrity.
- Be faithful, competent and diligent in discharging their professional duties.
- Safeguard confidential and privileged information and exercise due care to prevent its improper disclosure.
- Not maliciously injure the professional reputation or practice of colleagues, clients or employees.

In addition, any act deemed prejudicial to the CPP designation may result in denial of approval to take the CPP examination or disciplinary action by the Professional Certification Board (PCB), up to and including revocation of Certification. Such acts may include, but are not limited to:

- Providing false or misleading statements or information when applying to take the certification examination or to recertify.
- Any act or omission that violates the provisions of the CPP Code of Professional Responsibility.
- Any act that violates the criminal or civil laws of any jurisdiction.
- Any act that is the proper basis for suspension or revocation of a professional license.
- Any act or omission that violates the PCB Disciplinary Rules and Procedures.
- Failure to cooperate with the PCB's Board of Professional Review in performance of its duties in investigating any allegation against an applicant or current CPP.
- Making any false or misleading statements to the PCB regarding an applicant or current CPP.

There may be other acts or omissions amounting to unprofessional conduct that may constitute grounds for discipline by the PCB

Dear Daniel,

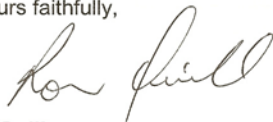

TENDER EVALUATORS ACCREDITATION LEVEL

I refer to your application and interview seeking a Tender Evaluator Accreditation.

Congratulations, you are now accredited at "C" Level – General, following a favourable recommendation by the Review Committee.

Tender evaluation is an important element of procurement and requires a good understanding of tendering principles and probity issues. You have demonstrated your ability in these areas and I wish you all the best in your new role.

Yours faithfully,

R. Quill
